BORZOI SCOTTISH DEERHOUND

KAY DICKSON

3884 Finnerty Rd.,
VICTORIA, B.C. V8N 4A2

AURORA completed her confirmation championship quickly by taking B.O.B. for all her points which includes a 3 pt. major over Specials under Mr. Nigel Aubrey Jones. This year Aurora took the Breed at the Western Gazehound Speciality. In field competion Aurora completed her championship with 3B.O.B. and 4 seconds in very stiff B.I.F. competion. In the United States of the 5 times out she has had 4B.O.B. and 4 firsts and 1 third for a total of 56 points.

AURORA has won the hearts of many people. She is the goodwill ambassador of DIZAR, while the Borzoi sit back and watch AURORA will greet everyone with her great sloppy kiss.

I wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Fred Giles of Lyonnesse Kennels for giving us the opportunity of owning such an outstanding hound.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Heather Loube
CSFA President

The Loube family has now moved BUT the address and telephone number are the same. The six hounds and their new friends (some purebred Charolais cattle) are thoroughly enjoying the benefits of living on a 100 acre farm while the people are still trying to complete renovations to an antique house. CSFA affairs are still in several cardboard boxes but the situation promises to improve soon, as we are looking forward to hosting the C.A.S.A. International Harvest Run here at the end of September.

In the March/April CANFAN, I mentioned a constitution for CSFA. A draft has been made and sent to all clubs. If each club would consider this proposed constitution at a meeting especially for that purpose before the end of September and submit suggestions for improvements to me before October 15, the executive will then be better able to complete the task. We hope to present a completed proposal to be voted on by each club before the end of November. As you know from our Canadian Parliament's constitution struggles, constitutions are a necessary evil. It would be very nice to get this particular evil out of the way.

From evil to good. The Canadian Kennel Club will shortly be considering a request to accept CSFA as the only lure coursing authority in Canada, and to recognize our purpose and aims. The CKC by-laws provide for coursing along with its other sanctioned activities such as shows and obedience and sporting dog field trials. After several letters and a lengthy conversation with Norman Brown, Shows and Trials Manager about CSFA he asked that I submit copies of the rules and a sample premium list for each Director for consideration. Mr. Brown told me that the only titles the CKC will recognize are those conferred by them. It seems to me that, if the majority of the membership wishes CSFA to be recognized by the CKC, we will have a real challenge ahead of us. In December, when you are voting on rule changes, you will also be asked if you wish to have field championships recognized by the CKC. I do not know what would be involved to acquire that recognition but I do want the opinion of the general membership which direction they wish to go.

CSFA fever is contagious! The Quebec Lure Coursing Association held a very successful fun run on July 30th and will be holding their first trials at Thanksgiving. The Western Gazehound Club in B.C. will be holding their first fun run on August 20th. There are rumblings of activity from Alberta and the Ottawa group are gearing up for their International meet. The Cowichan Valley club will be hosting their first trials on the Labour Day weekend. The oldest CSFA club, Vancouver Island, will be following the Lower Mainland Club at the end of September with a trial at the challenging and beautiful Woodwyn Farm in Victoria. Last trials of the year will be October 14 & 15th, hosted by the Fraser Valley Sighthounders.

We have a very busy time ahead of us and I want to wish you all a most enjoyable fall coursing season.

RESIGNED: It is with regret that we announce the resignation of Steve Buchholz as the B.C. Director for CSFA. As Steve has changed jobs and now works most weekends, making it impossible to attend most of the trials, he felt it fairest to resign. Thank you, Steve, for all your time and efforts on a job well done !!

APPOINTED: Best Wishes to the new B.C. Director, Tony James. We know that Tony will do a very good job and hope that the B.C. Clubs will give him the same cooperation that they gave to Steve.

Tom Robinson has been appointed the new Director for Alberta. We wish Tom the best of luck and look forward to hearing news from Alberta! Under Tom's leadership we know that they will be hosting trials in no time!

FUN RUNS: CONGRATULATIONS to the Quebec Lure Coursing Association on a very successful Fun Run on July 30th! Results and a description of the event are elsewhere in CANFAN. We look forward to the results of their first trials on October 7th and 8th.

GOOD LUCK to the Western Gazehound Club on their scheduled Fun Run on August 21, 1978! Results will be in the next issue.

Conditioning by Bonnie Goebel

When asked to write this article, the first thing that came to mind was the hours I've spent biking the dogs, getting them ready for a meet. But there is so much more that goes into getting a dog into good condition and then maintaining that condition afterwards.

Biking is excellent to build a dog's wind, so he has the endurance to complete a long, strenuous course and not "run out of gas" near the end. I always vary my speed and talk to the dogs the whole time, so that they don't get bored and then they are always ready to go the next time. I never let them tire themselves. We start at ten minutes a time and work up to whatever they are capable of doing. I've found that biking on pavement helps to toughen a dog's pads, which is important if you course on rough terrain or if your dog has a pad problem. Remember not to get too eager in the beginning — don't overdue it!! (Note: The same results can be obtained using a car instead of a bike, but be careful!)

The most important part of my conditioning program is the free running! This, I feel, is number one priority, to a sighthound's independant, mental well being. I always let them have a turn running by themselves, and then we usually hike for about an hour. This always gets the kinks out and makes for a more contented hound, not to mention what it does for the dog's muscle tone.

The best way I have found to build a dog's rear and increase his drive is to run him up a hill. I take a friend with me to hold the dogs while I stand at the top of a grassy hill and call them up one at a time. To give them a bit more incentive, I take a rabbit skin with me and run them four times each to the skin.

Since sprint speed is so important, I run the dogs on a 250 to 300 yard straightaway. I have a friend hold them while I wave a rabbit skin across the field. This is also excellent to straighten out dogs that have begun to cheat at lure coursing. I always let the dogs have a good chew and play tug-of-war with me for the skin after their run.

Besides this special conditioning which I do three or four times a week, the dogs get walked each and every day, regardless of the weather.

Remember, the amount of time you spend on conditioning now will be repaid to you in the future. It's benefits show through in the lure course, the open field, in the show ring, the obedience ring, on the track and in the home!!

JUDGING HINTS by Bud Pine

First off, a judge is picked because he/she is highly respected. There are as many ways of judging as there are judges. Each person values certain things with varying importance because of their previous background and experience.

ENTHUSIASM AND FOLLOW: (15 points each)

Enthusiasm is the mental desire to chase the lure. Follow is chasing the lure and making every attempt to catch it; continuing to search for the lure even when it is unsighted. Dogs that become unsighted and then resight, should receive at least a good score, and possibly a very good score. The exception is if the lead dog unsights without interferance, which is not good. A dog that does not finish the course should not receive more than a FAIR score. The exception to this being, when a dog is unsighted by other dogs and is very definitely looking for the lure. Points should be added for a dog trying to work in a team by forming a V and should be subtracted from a dog who is just blindly following the dog in front of him.

SPEED: (25 points)

Since we do not have a time clock on the coursing field, and actual speed can be illusionary, I feel that one must take running form into consideration. A dog should flatten, show great use of loin, should place his hind legs well forward and extend them well back, and should show great reach with the forelegs. Go-Byes on the straight show very good to excellent speed if the other dog is truly trying.

AGILITY: (25 points)

Agility is to me the dog's ability to get his hindquarters well underneath him and to lean well into a turn. Two types of dogs have problems with turns: the dogs that have learned how to really flatten out while running and the giant breeds who often have not had the practice turning while running at high speeds. Watching where the dog's weight is on a turn can help with judging agility. The agility score should be in comparison with the speed score as it is very easy for a slow dog to turn.

ENDURANCE: (20 points)

I believe that you rarely see a tired dog at the end of the short courses, but you do see many who lose their enthusiasm. A competent person can see that the dog's running form is changing (usually a bobbing up and down motion) and unless this happens, I see no reason to subtract from endurance. Most dogs should have the ability to run the same at the end of the course as they do at the beginning.

From Gary Zumach

I have been active in lure coursing for three and a half years and have had nothing but fun. I have been an open field courser for 20 years. I get wound up and carried away on my hobbies more than most people do, so I am told by my wife. So when I take an interest in something, I jump in with both feet.

From talking face to face with people and on the phone, and through letters and different articles I have read, many things can be lost in the interpretation. It is not my idea to step on anyone's toes or to offend anyone. Everyone has his or her ideas on what they like or dislike or what they believe in. My hobby is sighthounds and I love watching a darn good sighthound running full out to the best of their ability no matter what the breed.

Lure coursing is not perfect, but good sincere people are working on it. Coursing is lots of fun, and if I as a hunter can go and have fun watching my dogs run and everyone else's dogs run, and have fun, so can you. No one peron , no one judge, no one organization is perfect in the eys of everyone, but if you enter any form of activity with the right attitude you will have fun. So keep in mind that the dogs love it and it is good exercise for them.

I should say here that you don't have to be an open field courser or even to believe in open field coursing to make a good juge, IF YOU REALLY UNDERSTAND what it really takes in a dog, and how he works to catch game in the field. If you do not want to open field course, this is fine, but I would suggest you at least watch the many fine movies on open field coursing that are available around the country so that you can learn about how to judge and what to look for. Now on the other hand, I would say, just because you have open field coursed does not mean that you are going to make the ideal perfect judge — more enters into it than that. There is no one reading this article that has had more trouble getting it together than myself. The people who have read my early letters will tell you this.

When I attended my first trial, I was full of questions — what do the judges look for? I will say, the answers I received did not enlighten me any or maybe at the time I did not understand their meaning. As a hunter, we hunters did not use the same terminology, such as speed agility, follow, endurance and enthusiasm. From the hunter, it came out like this — boy that dog can run like hell (speed)! or you just might say that he is fast. One would say that a dog is good on his feet (agility). For follow, we would say he is right on. For enthusiasm, we would say he really likes to run, or is giving his all. We would say that he can run along way (endurance).

Before I judged my first time, I read all I could, which at the time was very little. Some was confusing to me what I read, so many different ideas, where the emphasis on what catagories should be given, etc. With the troubles I was having, one day one single statement hit me like a ton of bricks — lure coursing is supposed to simulate live game coursing. When I started applying what I know of open field coursing, things started to get easier. I would say, in my case, I made things more difficult than they should have been.

I am about to make a simple statement or what I though was a simple statement until I started visiting with my friends at the ASFA convention. WHAT I LOOK FOR IN LURE COURSING. The dog or dogs that get my top marks are the dogs out front on the lure most of the time, doing most of the work, most of the time. I would venture to say any hunter reading this knows exactly what I am talking about. But what I said before, people interpret thing differently, I know, I have myself.

There seems to be rivalry between the different breeds people own. There should not be any. All breeds do different things in the field, and have different qualities to offer. No hunter just has all fast dogs in his pack, the same as no hunter has all just slow dogs. Every dog in the pack does different things to make it a successful pack. All of the good dogs I have seen, no matter what the breed was, had to have one thing in common, and that was to run like hell in order to catch what they were after. One thing I have never seen and that is a dog with too much speed. I have never talked to anyone who has owned a dog with too much speed.

No pack would be complete without dogs with speed and stamina combined, the dogs that take over after the fast dog has given out. Again you need another type of dog, to keep going after the second dog gives out — a dog with down right stamina. All these things have a place in a pack to make it successfull.

I have heard people talk about how smart their dogs are at cutting all over the course to head off the lure. It is true what they say, their dogs are too smart. They are lure wise and under my judging, wouldn't score very high. Cutting and hedging just doesn't take place in the open field, as you see it so often in lure coursing. Yes, brain work takes place, all the time in the open field, but not done in the same way at lure coursing. In the open field when the dog gets ten to thirty yards from the game, they are on it, and running like mad to catch it. When they get that close they are trying to catch it, not trying to figure out where it is going so they can head it off.

When we are judging, we have to judge the dogs on what they are actually doing, not what we think they are supposed to be doing. It does not make any difference what the breed is, if they are going to catch the game in the field. Lure coursing is supposed to simulate live game coursing. The dog should be running like mad and on the lure. In the open field it is not always the fastest dog who catches the jack but he has forced the turn of the jack, he has made it possible for the other dogs to catch it, he has done the work so that the others can catch the game.

In lure coursing, our dogs are not allowed to catch the lure, but the same principals have to apply. The lure operator can make or break a dog in a course. No one can run a lure to everyone's liking, one hundred per cent of the time, even an experienced lure operator. I could write a page or two on this subject, alone. For the people on the side-lines continuously griping about the way the lure is run or about the bad judging, my advice to you people is — TRY IT YOURSELF — try judging an entire breed of dog, not just the course your dog is running in. You will see that it takes time and experience to make a good judge or lure operator.

One more thing, I just thought of, and I believe the statement goes like this — a dog should not be awarded top points for speed alone, without subsequent work. This statement can be confusing if you do not read and keep in mind the whole statement. For those people only reading the first part of the statment they can use this part as a crutch over and over again, and continually give a high score to the second and third dog of each course and never give a high score to the dog who leads the entire course. On the other hand, just as an example, three dogs are started and run 50 to 75 yards straight ahead before the first turn, one dogs clearly out runs the other two and gets to the first turn ahead. He has just proven he has better speed than his two competitors from what you have just seen, but if that fast dog never leads or outruns the other two dogs in that course again, he will not get my top score for that particular course. Again the dog or dogs on the lure, leading in the course, doing most of the work most of the time, get my top score in each course. Putting all the courses together is another stickler, and if you are in the top four for each breed, you are a winner in my book.

No one person has the perfect answer or solution to everything, and certainly not myself. I believe every judge should have to make a statement in what he looks for when judging, even when all of us judging are looking for the same things. We all see different things, no two people interpret what they see the same. I would very much like to hear from you people reading this article of whether you agree with some of the statements I have made and my way of thinking. If you disagree or I have not made myself clear, I surely would like to hear from you and your reasons behind them.

I greatly enjoy any type of racing or coursing with sighthounds. My family and I have over the last three and a half years made untold number of good friends, through A.R.M. racing, lure coursing and open field coursing. If you are new to any form of racing or coursing and wondering what kind of people you will meet, my advice is to go ahead; most of the people you will like and you'll have fun. This is why my family and I participate — to have fun and make new friends.

PARLEZ-VOUS LA CHASSE DE LURE ???

The Quebec Lure Coursing Association held its first Fun Run on July 30th in Kirkland, a Montreal suburb, with a total entry of 30 sighthounds, most of whom had never seen a lure before.

Among the novice entries were BIS Ch. Kashmir's Daddy Kool (Afghan) and his Specialty winning kennelmate who enjoyed their first experience with the plastic bunny. Towsey was unable to resist the "lure" of a large tree in his first run, but made it all the way past it the second time, much to the delight of the cheering spectators and not to mention his owners! So Affie owners, take heart — your dog CAN do both!! While we are bragging we might add that we also had competing, a highest scoring dog in obedience trial, who happens to be a whippet bitch!

Ch. Hilerica Brass Knuckles gave a sizzling performance winning the whippet breed run off. After a brief rest during the first Best in Field Course, Doobie blasted around the course to a very fine Best in Field win. A close second to Doobie was an adolescent Saluki who displayed maniac enthusiasm for the lure and edged out his famous father, the smooth running Vallo. Nairo has now thoroughly infected his Vermont owners with the lure coursing disease.

Even though there were far more beginners than experienced runners, and the area was not completely fenced, we didn't have any runaways and 90% of the dogs followed the lure to the end! Nearly all the hounds showed great improvement in their final run, and with a bit of practice and conditioning, the Quebec contingent will be able to give any competition a good run for the money. So, lure coursing has found another home in the East and a new club run by very novice people are very much encouraged to Tally-Ho again!
