COVER STORY BUFFALO JOE (BIG GUY), AMERICAN FIELD CHAMPION

When Big Guy was born it was never our intention to keep him. We were, in fact, planing to place all the pups in the litter. We offered to sell him once to a good friend. Another couple had the opportunity to pick either him or his brother, Russki. But as he grew older his strong allegiance and gentle comical personality developed and our eyes were opened. He became a permanent part of our family, joining his mother, American and Canadian Champion Beatrice Petrovna. (It was Beatrice, by the way, who encouraged us towards Big Guy's sire, AM.CAN.CH. Toshi's Alexei of Phantom Lake - they met at a practice lure coursing match.)

As of this writing, Big Guy is the first and only Borzoi to complete his Field Champion title in the Northwest. Finishing with all 808 wins. He still remains undefeated in the U.S. although his mother has beaten him a time or two, unofficially.

Big Guy is owned and operated by Margaret McLeod-Redman and Denny Redman

CSFA NEWS

All Field Trial Chairmen please make note of the following rules and their interpretation:

CHAPTER III, SECTION 2:

" In the case where one or more hounds fails to run after the Tally-ho in the preliminaries, they shall be dismissed for the day." Hounds that receive a score of zero because they did not run SHALL be dismissed for the day and MUST not run in the finals. Please note also that the dismissed dogs DO NOT count for the points for the dogs that place. All judges and field clerks should be reminded of this rule.

CHAPTER IV, SECTION 6:

".... all Best of Breed winners may run in Best in Field competition." In the event of a mixed stake, the highest scoring hound in each breed of the mixed stake is the Best of Breed winner and, even though defeated by another breed in the mixed competition, may run in Best in Field.

Field Trial Secretaries please note:

CHAPTER I, SECTION I:

"... all entries shall be registered with the Canadian Kennel Club or the American Kennel Club." Regarding NGA Greyhounds, since these dogs are registered neither with the CKC or the AKC we cannot accept these entries under the present rules. With regard to ILP numbers issued by the AKC — since these dogs are in effect, registered by the AKC under the Indefinite Listing Privilege and are able to compete in Obedience trials in the US as well as ASFA events, and even though ILP numbers are not recognized by the CKC; at this time and until such time as the rules in this regard are rewritten and/or expanded or clarified, those dogs with ILP numbers are to be accepted in CSFA field events.

A general note on the Registration section:

It is obvious that this section of the rules needs clarification and amplification but we must run the CSFA according to the rules as written regardless of how we feel they should be changed. The next rule change voting will be in December and it is hoped that this particular rule will be on the agenda.

Field Trial Secretaries please note:

Field Trial entries must be completed on the CSFA entry form. CKC show entry forms and/or scrap pieces of paper should not be accepted as entries. Please be sure that all the information is on the entries, particularly registration numbers.

Although Best in Field is not an official class, please submit full results of Best in Field to the Records Chairman for publication in CANFAN.

VOLANT O SOLITARY MAN, American Field Champion

Faster than a speeding bumper, more powerful than a loco motive, unable to control himself like a silly clown... Look! out in the field, it's a bear? It's a hairy yak? No, it's the "Little Guy!" (Not to be confused with his pal, Big Guy) Yes, it's the Little Guy who came to the Coursing field with powers far beyond those of normal dogs... Yes, the Little Guy, cleverly disguised as Volant O Solitary Man (Manny to his friends) fights a neverending battle for rabbit skins, garbage bags, and a cleanly run course.

Qualifying Sighthounds

I think it would be very adviseable that all novice hounds, and any hounds that have experienced difficulties in their running habbits should be "qualified" prior to their entry in a CSFA meet. I would like to see this made a rule with CSFA.

In order to qulaify, a novice or "problem" hound should be run on a typical course, being slipped with a dog of similar running characteristics, preferably another of the same breed. A designated offical of a CSFA member club would act as the huntmaster for the course and scrutinize whether the hound runs cleanly, or whether it interferes with the other dog, either playfully or aggressively. If the dog does interfere, it would not be eligible to enter CSFA meets until it has been successfully "qualified".

It would be the responsibility of every established club to provide some suitable trained dogs with which the novice dogs may be run, both so that the new dogs can gain experience and so that they could be qualified for the meets.

Although there are some sighthounds which take naturally to lure coursing and need little or no practice, in many cases the complete novice is unsure as to what to chase — the lure or the other dogs. Some dogs react to seeing the other dogs in a playful manner, but unfortunately a good many will react to seeing the other dogs in an aggressive manner. A dog who has never run the lure by itself will be taking a big step backwards if it starts to run after the other dogs; instead of the owner just having to orient his dog to chase the lure, he will now have to first break it of the difficult habit of chasing the other dogs — and this is not often easy.

Not only can complete novice entries be to the disadvantage of the inexperienced courser, they can also be a hazard to the dogs they are competing with. While one would hope that our experienced dogs would be able to handle interference we have all seen good running dogs quit running and refuse to run with other dogs again, or the retaliation of aggression with the experience dog getting dismissed for interference — all due to being harrassed by a novice dog that has not any idea of who or what it should be chasing.

Exceptions to these suggestions would be allowed at the discression of the club sponsoring the meet. The decision that hounds should prove themselves qualified to run should not cause undue hardship on either hound or owner. The sole purpose of this would be to benefit both the novice hound and the other hounds with which it would be competing at a lure field trial.

Since lure coursing is a new sport to Canada certain obvious exceptions to the above suggestions would be allowed:

1. In the case of a newly formed club, there may not be enough experienced dogs available to qualify the new dogs. Also, in the formative stages of the club's development, new members should be encouraged and, so, at the club's discression these suggestions might be waived.

2. There are many areas in the country where there are no clubs and lure practices are not available. If the owner of the dog lives 60 or more miles from the area of any regular practice sessions, the sponsoring club may allow a new dog to compete in a trial.

I would welcome some comments on this idea and hope people will send in their ideas on this for CANFAN.

Hello, it's your friendly CANFAN editors here!

It seems you're all enjoying your CANFAN so much that some of you are loosing patience waiting for it to arrive in the mail... Well, you're not the only ones!

Your editors wait for ads and more importantly they wait for the results of trials covered in that two-month edition so that the May/June issue (yours truely) will include the complete results of all CSFA activities held during the two monthes listed on the cover.

Why do we do it this way you ask? We're not sure. It seemed a good idea at the time. You know, you're looking for the results from the May 1978 LMSA trials so you just find the May/June 1978 issue of CANFAN and there you are. See, we can explain ourselves! But now a few words to our article writers...

Your editors would like to send a very special THANK YOU to those individuals who have unselfishly given of their time and opinions to the benefit of our readership. We now even have a few extra which makes things a little easier in fitting so many pages into so much space. We welcome positive suggestions in the form of articles from all sources.

Thank you, Jan Priddy and Linda Buchholz

a new look at field clerking

OR WE DON'T DO IT THAT WAY IN B.C.

At the recent CASA trials in Ottawa a new approach to field clerking came to light via the eastern ASFA participants. It was a different method from that used in the West, both north and south of the border. We gave it a try and discovered both the advantages and disadvantages of the systme. Here, with a few modifications on what we tried, is a new, and I believe, more efficient and accurate way of doing the job.

First of all, the field clerk is literally just what the name implies: a clerk on the field with the judges. Equipped with a supply of judges sheets and field record sheets, the clerk is stationed between the two judges in order that no discussion of the course be held until the judging sheets are completed. Before each course the field clerk gives each judges a judging sheet with all information completed except for the signature and scores. This insures that all items are completed and saves the judges a bit of time. Also the judge has one sheet on the clip board at a time and with our new triplicate self-carbon sheets, this is a plus. After the judging sheets are completed, the judge hands the top two copies to the clerk and retains the bottom copy for his own records. The field clerk checks the scores for adding and ommissions and can immediately have any necessary corrections made. The results are then entered on the field record sheet and the top copies of the judging sheets are then sent into the records desk where they are again checked and entered on a second field record sheet and the score board. At the end of each stake the field clerk sends in the field sheet to be checked against the records desk sheet. The judging sheets are then stapled in order to each field record sheet and the job is completed. One set of records is for the host club and another set is for the CSFA records chairman.

BEFORE the trial the field trial secretary fills in two copies of the field record sheets — one for the field clerk and one for the records desk. Registration number, registered name and call name are accurately filled in and the entry forms clipped together in the same order as they appear on the field sheet. This is a bonus to the record chairman when checking records, but a bit of a nuisance when filling in the scores for the preliminaries. However, the advantages far outweigh the disadvantages.

Draw Order Sheets are used to further simplify matters (at this point, you are probably thinking that matters are getting more confusing — not so). Copies of the draw order sheet are needed for the field clerk, the records desk and the paddock master. The information on the draw order sheet is the call name and owners name beside each course in order of the draw: 1Y, 1P, etc. In order to complete the draw order sheet, a typewriter is handy plus carbon AND a list of each dog by breed, call name and the owners name which is prepared by the field trial secretary BEFORE the trial with a copy for the chairman for roll call and another for the body making up the draw order.

With this new method, the field trial secretary has done the major part of the work before the trial, while still alert instead of after when dog-tired (pun intended!). All that is needed after the trial is to quickly check through the field sheets, sign them and send them off. There is less chance of error with the double checking system on the day of the trial. The judges need only concern themselves with scoring. The end result is a better trial and less harassed personnel.

I hope that your club will consider this method and give it a try.

Heather Loube.

The Importance of Conditioning and Training

I still see dogs being entered out of condition (in all breeds) at field trials. Recently, I saw a young hound entered at a trial who appeared not to have been prepared ahead of time. The poor animal had no idea of what was expected of her; evidently the owners didn't either. The owner risked his dog for a few moments of pleasure and was disappointed when she would not perform. It was an exceptionally hot day, and she was not protected properly from the sun or cooled down properly after her first run.

We usually carry ice, and at least several gallons of water and towells on such occasions. We take special precautions, in hot weather, to assure that the dogs are kept cool. We wet them down and keep them in shaded areas whenever possible. If there are no shaded areas, we make them. (The ice could come in handy to ward off a heat stroke in an emergency).

This particular hound (as the owner pointed out) had never seen a lure before and no attempt to simulate one at home was made. The second time out the dog showed signs of fatigue and sat down and would not move, much to the owner's dismay. This was partly due to the heat and partly due to exhaustion — of course this is only an assumption. Although as an observer I have noticed the better you prepare your dog, the better he will perform. An official lure field trial is not the place to try out your hound's interest in a lure or test his condition. Now the owner claims he will go home and train and condition his dog, — but will the dog want to try again?

At another trial I noticed dogs being run that were overweight. One, after it was run, had to be carried off the field. This dog was obviously not in condition and known to be kept in a crate most of the time. Another refused to run because it had to wear a muzzle and had never been introduced to one ahead of time.

Lure coursing is not considered a dangerous sport, but neither is golf. It is not unusual to hear of someone passing out on the golf course from the heat or from overexertion, or that someone was hit on the head by a golf ball. Sometimes accidents happen due to no fault of the participants of a given sport. You should not enter into a sport without finding out what is expected of you if you value your health and well being.

Our dogs are considered members of our family. We value them for many reasons. We would not subject them to something we would not want to be subjected to ourselves; nor will we unnecessarily risk their health or well being.

Come on Hound Fanciers, take out a few minutes a day to train and condition your dog before you try him on coursing. You know the old saying — "Anything worth doing is worth doing well." If you are serious about lure coursing, then go about it properly. Read all you can on the subject and take all the precautions you can to insure that you and your hound will have a good time. With the extra effort, you might find yourself picking up the first place ribbon, making it all worthwhile. You know after spending the entry fees and the travelling expenses, it only makes sense to try to insure your hound has the best chance you can give him to come out on top. If he doesn't, you at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you and he tried your best, and that he can leave the field trial a happy and healthy hound.

You know it doesn't matter to your dog if he wins, only that he ran. You know he has to run better if he is trained and conditioned, worm free, and fed properly. It is physically and mentally punishing to your dog to expect him to perform without preparing him ahead of time, to say nothing about the fact that you could ruin him as a coursing hound. Even placing a muzzle on a dog not accumstomed to one is a form of punishment.

Although I do not claim to know all there is to know about sighthounds and lure coursing, I do know a lot of it is common sense. Having your hound's welfare in mind at all times is of the greatest importance and is what I try to do myself.

I have been asked about our hounds' reaction to lure coursing — THEY LOVE IT. They thrill to the sounds of the other dogs running, even when they are out of sight of the fields. They appear to be in better condition since we started, and we are, too. There is usually a camp site nearby or sometimes we camp right at the site of the field trial. If you like the outdoors and don't mind travelling, coursing is a great way to get away from it all, enjoying your family as well as your hound. My children are fascinated at meeting so many people with similar interests and they love the travelling.

To sum it up, if you haven't conditioned your dog, do it now, if you intend to course him in the future and have FUN coursing, when you do!!

W. Valerie Rees

atten. FIELD CLERKS

The main purpose of field clerks is to record results and catch judge's errors on the day of the trial, and the purpose of the field trial secretary is to find any additional errors after the trial, correct these errors, notify those people concerned promptly, and then submit the complete and correct results the the CSFA Records Chairman for recording and publication in CANFAN.

Unfortunately too many errors are being made in the trial results. I urge all Clubs to choose the right people for field clerking, not just those people that have done it before, especially since we are finding these mistakes being repeated.

I shouldn't be finding additional errors in the results after they have been sent to me — and unfortunately, these errors are reaching me! I have been receiving too many angry phone calls from owners wanting to know why it has taken 10 - 14 days to find out about the errors in their dog's placements! These mistakes should have been found by the field trial secretaries right after the meet, and not by me.

Here are a few of the errors that seem to be made most often:

1. Incomplete entry forms:
   - make sure there is a CKC or an AKC registration number
   - be sure that the entry is signed
   - entries must be on official CSFA entry forms

2. Judges Sheets:
   - double check the adding
   - make sure they are signed by the judge and dated
   - take all mistakes back to the judges immediately and make sure that all the mistakes and corrections are initialled by the judge involved.

3. Record Sheets:
   - enter scores onto the record sheets carefully
   - pay special attention to blanket colors at the top of the judges sheets as they do not always go in the order of yellow, pink and blue
   - double check that the right dog gets the right score
   - watch to put the correct judge's name down on the record sheet for the breed

4. Dogs dismissed in the preliminary do not run in the final and their names should not be redrawn.

I thank you for your cooperation and if there are any questions, please do not hesitate to ask. I know that mistakes do happen, but please, let's try to keep them to a minimum.

CSFA CANADIAN SIGHTHOUND FIELD ASSOCIATION

Sincerely,

Bonnie Goebel
CSFA Records Chairman.
